Public Transport along the Pennine Way National Trail - last updated March 2023

The Pennine Way may pass through some of the remotest locations in the country but there are still many public transport options available to get you to, from and between different points along the trail.

The following list shows some of the public transport options available. There may be other options not included here and services listed may change. Always check public transport services and times with the service provider for up to date and accurate information – links to service provider websites are provided to help with this.

Journey planning for all means of transport is possible using www.traveline.info (Telephone: 0871 200 22 33). Entering your start point, your destination and travel dates will give you all the available options using public transport.

For train services, the following network map may be useful: Link to Northern Railway Network Map

Information on facilities available at train stations can be found here: www.nationalrail.co.uk/stations.
